

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates generally to systems and methods for storing a plurality of documents, where each of the plurality of documents is divided into a plurality of clauses. Each of the plurality of clauses may be stored separately. Systems and methods further include the ability to store comments and modifications relating to associated clauses, together with identifying information. The comments and modifications may be considered in the generation of a final document.